

Construction underway at redevelopment project

The first construction of a building in the 29 acre Wilmington Re-Development Authority project started Monday morning.

Construction started on a 30,000 square foot building for Altron, Inc. The building will be a new home for the present part of the firm located on Industrial Way. Altron is a manufacturer of printed circuit boards and wire wrap panels.

Altron, which at present employs about 100 persons, hopes to move into its new home next March. At that time it expects to double the number of employees, and another division of the same firm, which is now located in Billerica, will move into the Industrial Way building of Altron.

The president of Altron is Samuel Altschuler, and Burton Doo, formerly of Wilmington, now of Cambridge, is vice president. Mr. Doo told the Town Crier that they are trying to save all the trees possible on the six acres which Altron is buying. Employees, last Friday, went down to the project marked all the trees which it is desired to save.

The new Altron building will be on the right side of Jewel Drive, with its back toward Main Street.

Altron is the first firm to purchase from the Jewel Manufacturing Company, which is taking over the land from the Wilmington Re-Development.

Jewel, which used to be on Woburn Street and is now in Tewksbury. It is buying the entire 40 acres of the Wilmington Re-Development. Heading Jewell is William Meyer of 12 Wilton Drive, and with Mr. Meyer is Bob Bertwell of Lowell Street. Mr. Meyer, who is blind, gained national prominence in 1967, when he was named the national Blind Father of the Year.

The forty acres of land in the Wilmington Re-Development project was for many years a wasteland, with one home and many useless houselots dating back to the days of the Woburn City Land Development, just after the Spanish American War, which houselots were laid out 35 feet wide and 70 feet long. The houselots became a jungle, in ownership, over the years, and half a dozen years ago it seemed that only a couple of the houselots were paying taxes to the town.

ALTRON SIGNS WITH JEWEL: For six acres of land in the Wilmington Re-Development Authority project off Eames Street. Signing is Samuel Altschuler, president of Altron. William Meyer, president of Jewel, is leaning on the desk, and behind him is Bob Bertwell of Jewel. The signing took place on September 12.

EVERYONE IS SMILING: Because they know there is money coming in. Nikki Johnson, William F. Butt and Chairman Ray McNamara examine the plans for the new Altron Building, in the Wilmington Re-Development land off Eames St.

Total taxes being paid amounted to only a lot little over $500 a year, for the entire 40 acres.

The Wilmington Chamber of Commerce, Stanley Webber secretary, half a dozen years ago proposed that the town form a Re-Development Authority, to take over the land and make it into a modern industrial area.

The Authority was authorized by the Town Meeting, and for years it has been at work, acquiring the land, meeting two or more times a month, complying with the legal complexities and keeping the Board of Selectmen fully advised of each step and the total progress.

Raymond McNamara, who is a member of the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce, has been a member of the Authority since it was formed, and is the chairman. Other current members are William F. Butt, Carl Backman Jr., Sidney Kaiser and Currie N. Johnson, better known as Nikki Johnson.

Wilmington Re-Development will be paying the treasurer of the Town of Wilmington, shortly, with a check of about $98,000. It will be the first payment to the town, in cash, for the project voted five years ago.

Legion Installation had some firsts

The installation of Thomas MacFeeley as Commander of the Wilmington Post 136, American Legion, last Saturday had three firsts.

It is the first time a veteran of the Vietnam War was installed as Commander of the Post.

It is the first time that a brother-sister team commands the Post and the Auxiliary, for Pat MacFeeley, is president of the Auxiliary.

It is the first time that the son of a Past Commander had become the Commander of the Post.

Angus MacFeeley, who will be 79 next month, looks the same today as he did when he commanded the Post, back about 20 years ago.

And it may be that Commander MacFeeley is the first to command the Veteran's Post and be a Scoutmaster at the same time. He is Scoutmaster of Troop 136, a troop sponsored by Post 136.

Four Boy Scouts formed an honor guard for Commander MacFeeley, as did four members of the Wilmington Minutemen, during the ceremonies.

PRESIDENT PAT MacFEELEY: Past Commander Angus MacFeeley and Commander Tom MacFeeley.

Past Commander Angus was honored by the post for having spent 1037 hours at the Veteran's Hospital, in the service of disabled and hospitalized veterans.

Tonight is Booster Button Night

Tonight there will be young people knocking on the doors of Wilmington. They will not be hogslobins. That doesn't happen for another month.

The High School sports teams will be knocking on the doors of Wilmington residents. They should be welcomed. They are the bearers of good wishes.

The Will be selling Wilmington Booster Buttons. The price is $1.

Anyone who buys a button is automatically a full paid member of the Wilmington High School Boosters for the coming year. The member will be entitled to attend the meetings, and participate. Meetings are generally in the old Mildred Rogers School.

The money which is given, which is collected by the young people all goes to the Booster's Club generous scholarship program, which, each year helps four or five Wilmington students on their way to college.

And that's a good reason to give a buck!

800 marchers expected Sunday

Co-chairmen Frank Sferrazza and Mary Boylen of the 1975 Fund Raising for the Wilmington Community Fund, expect that there will be 800 marchers, to start from Wilmington Common at 8 a.m. Sunday. They will be making a 12 mile hike around Wilmington - exactly the same route as last year, to raise money for the Community Fund.

Not that 800 people have yet told the chairmen and their helpers that they will be marching, but there are many who are soliciting sponsors, to pay the marchers, and it is estimated by reports that the number must be 800 or more.

Wilmington Community Fund officials will be on the Common, to register the walkers. This will take one hour, between 7 and 8 a.m.

A loud speaker system is being set up, to alleviate some of the problems which arose in that early hour, a year ago.

The Wilmington Minutemen are to again lead off the march. The Wilmington Crusaders will be present, it is understood, to provide some of their stirring march music.

The Community Fund, this year, has a goal of $10,000. Last year it raised over $7,500 and in the first year of the Walk-a-Thon $6700 was raised.

The money is raised by the Community Fund to care for Wilmington problems, charities,

Town aids woodcutting to fund Troop 49 scouts

Tewksbury selectmen have voted unanimously to allow parents of Troop 49 boy scouts to take trees cut down by the tree department and cut them down further for firewood. The troop would sell the firewood to buy new camping equipment for the scouts.

Richard Beaudette of Troop 49 committee and Scoutmaster Ray Troudeau originally asked the selectmen to allow them to cut down trees on town property which tree department experts considered removable for good forestry practices.

Because selectmen were skeptical about their right to give away town owned property, they suggested trees properly removed by the tree department be turned over to the scouts' parents.

residents to take wood stockpiled on the highway department garage

They explained that the town already has a policy of allowing all property for firewood. That consists of wood revived as part of the tree department's normal operations.

Parents of the scouts seek to raise $900 by selling 25 cords of wood. Beaudette and Troudeau stressed most of the troop's camping equipment was 15 years old, and was long overdue for replacement.

In other action concerning DPW matters, the board continued negotiations with engineers from Whitman & Howard over a contract for the firm to provide engineering for Phase A of the town's sewer installation project.

Invitation from Teen Theater Workshop

The Teen Theater Workshop of Tewksbury has invited teens from surrounding towns to join in the presentation of "1776," the hit Broadway musical.

The play will be performed on November 21, 22 and 23 at Tewksbury Memorial High School. Since the script calls for 24 males, the group is in need of men to complete the cast. There are many parts available - both singing and straight.

Rehearsals are evenings and are usually over by nine o'clock. There is also some flexibility in the schedule to allow for those who have part-time jobs. Any young men interested in auditioning should report to Tewksbury Memorial High School at 7 p.m. on Friday, September 26. Ladies who might like to work backstage are also invited.

The Legion Clubhouse once had a railroad

After having been down for a repaint job for two years, the American Legion sign has again been posted over the building on Middlesex Avenue in Wilmington. It was put up last Friday by Past Commander Ken Maynard and some of the Scouts from Troop 136.

The old building has been spruced up. There are new interior walls. Some of the former windows have disappeared. Thieves who seek to break into the building will find it more difficult.

The building is probably over 125 years old. A man named Adams was making wooden pumps there in 1850, wooden pumps, square, with a long handle.

His name was probably Cyrus. In 1848 Susan Maria Morrill, the great granddaughter of the Rev. Isaac Morrill married a man named Cyrus Adams. Subsequently there were two children, Milton and Jasper.

It cannot be stated with certainty that Cyrus Adams made the Adams pumps, but a map of 1854 shows that S. Adams owned the building, and this could have been Susan Adams. The old Morrill home was only a couple of hundred yards down Middlesex Avenue. Deacon Cadwallader Morrill, her father, could have given the land as a wedding gift, or could have sold it. Anyway, a man named Adams built pumps there in 1850, and the name Adams Street probably derives from that. And the first name of Mr. Adams was probably Cyrus.

The building seems to have been two stories, right from the beginning. It is possible that Mr. and Mrs. Adams made their home there, too.

Mr. Adams was making pumps there for about 20 years, and perhaps a little longer, but eventually he was put out of business by the same thing that put other pump factories out of business - the invention of the cast iron pump with the steel plunger. That was about 1875.

Where Mr. and Mrs. Adams went, after that, is not in the records. They completely disappeared, and perhaps, like others, they went west. But a few things are recorded, during their sojourn in Wilmington.

Wilmington of course is an old Yankee town, and the town meetings were traditionally held in the Meeting House, which was also, of course, the church.

About 1861 or 62 A Select School was started in Wilmington. This was another name for a High School. The classes were in the church basement, where ordinarily the town meetings were held.

Because of this, or because of other reasons, the town meetings were held elsewhere than the Meeting House. On some occasions, at least, it was in the Adams Pump Factory building.

Some few years ago this paper told the story of Company D, 51st Volunteers, in the Civil War. Corporal Levi Swain of that company had been the Constable of Wilmington, and one town meeting he "called" was held in the Pump Factory.

And in 1864, after the Meeting House was burned, the Town Meetings of course had to be held elsewhere.

Across the street from the Meeting House was the church which had been a Freewill Baptist Church. It was available, but the town had not bought it, as yet. Later it was bought, and it is now the Town Hall.

But probably all the Town Meetings of that year were in the Adams Pump Factory. The building seemed to have the necessary room.

Another story, a little later, is of George Westinghouse, the railroad conductor who invented the Westinghouse Air Brakes. It comes, partly at least, as a traditionally story, one that can be neither proven nor disproven.

The railroads in the United States were expanding, during and after the Civil War, and one of the great problems of the day was to find a method of stopping trains promptly, when needed. All trains had to depend on brakemen who turned on the brakes by hand, and then went onto the next car, where the process was repeated.

Mr. Adams was interested. He built an inclined railway, in his factory, from the second floor to the first, and down that inclined railway, using the force of gravity as power, he experimented with various methods of turning on the brakes of railroad cars. Presumably he was using methods that would be available to the engineer who was in the locomotive cab.

Old Wilmington legend says that one of the visitors to the experiments of Mr. Adams was the railroad conductor George Westinghouse. Did George Westinghouse learn anything about air brakes on that visit?

There seems to be no record of when the Adams Pump Factory closed, and of when the Adams family left Wilmington. Cast iron pumps were being manufactured about 100 years ago. Perhaps that was the local factory closed down.

Sometime about the time of the Spanish American War, or maybe a few years one way or the other the old factory became a four apartment dwelling. All four apartments had two floors, and all four faced on Adams Street. One family who lived in that building was Mr. and Mrs. Carl Cady, shortly after they were married, in the early 1900's.

The next of which the writer can tell was of the Catholic Club. That was, as may be guessed, a part of the people of St. Thomas Church, and it was a lively organization. It was about 50 years ago, and the club was always having a play, or a minstrel show or something.

Between the time of being an apartment house and a Catholic Club there seems to be no record. It was, the writer remembers, a forlorn looking building, with one apple tree in what could now be called the front yard. That was a crab apple tree, probably wonderful for making jelly, but very poor eating.

It was after the Catholic Club lost interest in the old building that the American Legion bought it. Post 136 had been meeting in the Town Hall, and that was no place for even a selectman, in those days.

When the membership saw the opportunity they moved quickly. That was about 1930, and it has been the headquarters of the American Legion in Wilmington ever since.

800 Marchers expected Sunday

THE COMMUNITY FUND IS NOT WITHOUT HUMOR: Someone, this year, has designed a placard to be on every car that will be patrolling the area where the Community Fund marchers will be. The Toe Car placard has a big red toe, which will be readily visible to any person needing help or assistance. It assures parents any child can accept aid from the cars with the Big Red Toes.

and relief assistance. The Community Fund has been noted for years for its no-nonsense approach to these problems. All is volunteer work - no paid assistants, and all money donated to the Fund is used in one of the three designated areas. Youth activities in the town are, for the most part, financed by the Community Fund.

Watch for them

Flea market bugs who missed the sale at VFW Hall in Tewksbury last Saturday, shouldn't have. This was probably among the cleanest (even used clothing and toys had been neatly washed and stacked), most well-organized and reasonable such events in the area of late.

Members are discussing holding another flea market early in November - watch for it.

Also coming soon is the Wilmington Golden Age Harvest Fair to be held in K of C Hall on Thursday, October 9. Members will gratefully accept donations for the various tables and will be hoping for your patronage. Call Gus at 658-2881 for information.

On Saturday, September 27, a social to benefit the Eastern Mass Chapter of Sudden Infant Death will be held at Elks Hall in Tewksbury beginning at 8 p.m.

A buffet will be served, dancing will be enjoyed and many prizes will be awarded.

Oldest rookie?

Wilmington can boast of many things, but on Friday, September 12, it gained what must be still another - "the oldest rookie" to play with the Boston Bruins.

Howie Walden of Glendale Circle was at the Stoneham Ice Hockey Rink seeking ice time as the Boston Bruins were warming up. He was awarded the opportunity to skate with, chat with and have his picture taken with right wing Ken Hodge.

Mr. Walden is a 22 year veteran of General Electric, but he's just a rookie to the Bruins.

Anniversaries

At least two Wilmington couples will be observing their 52nd wedding anniversaries on October 6 - Harold and Myrtle McKelvey of Border Ave., and Henry and Ivy Leinhard of Elwood Rd.

They're waiting

So far the news is all good from the Grasshoppers and Cricket, the young men, who just before entering the service submitted to drastic changes of hair style as Laurie MacDonald of Chestnut St. wielded the scissors. Wildcats rally past Stoneham

Fourth quarter touchdowns by bob Sferrazza and Mark Esposito enabled Wilmington to slip by Stoneham 24 - 19 in the season opener for both clubs. It was the second year in a row Wilmington opened the season with a win over the Spartans.

After Stoneham couldn't move Wilmington took over at midfield. On second down Mark Esposito broke over left end for an apparent 50 yard touchdown, but a clipping penalty nullified the run. The Wildcats drove down to the Stoneham 25 where on third and eight Jim Stewart found Dino Esposito in the end zone for the score. The rush failed and Wilmington led 6 - 0.

The Wildcats got another chance at paydirt, when Dave Rounds recovered a fumble on the Spartan eight yard line. Three cracks at the Stoneham middle brought the ball to the one. In fourth down Jack Moran was stopped just inches short of the goal line as the quarter ended..

After an exchange of punts Stoneham's "Big Jack," Gary Poordian scored on a 50 yard run for a 7 - 6 Spartan lead Proodian kicked the conversion.

Jack Moran's 47 yard kick return gave Wilmington excellent field position at the Stoneham 37. Two plays later Bob Sferrazza broke lose for Wilmington's second score. The two point conversion pass failed, and the Wildcats led 12 - 7.

Then Stoneham got a big break with 12 seconds left in the half. Wildcat Jim Stewart fumbled trying to pass on his own one yard line. With five seconds left, Proodian bulled in for the score. The try for failed and Stoneham went into the lockerroom leading 13 - 12.

In the third stanza Wilmington ran but three plays as Stoneham played ball control moving the ball from their own 23 all the way down to the Wildcat two as the period ended.

Big Proodian again slammed into the endzone. The kick went wide for a 19 - 12 Stoneham lead.

Wilmington came right back taking over at their own 19 and moving down to the Stoneham 42. On third down Stewart fired 42 yards to Bob Sferrazza who outran everyone into the endzone.

The rush failed and Wilmington trailed 19 - 18 with 5:06 left to play. Wilmington took over with under three minutes left to go. From the 23 Mark Esposito scored on a brilliant run-to lock up the game. Stoneham couldn't move and time ran out with Wilmington on the Stoneham 25.

Saturday Wilmington travels to Lawrence for the MVC opener. Note the kickoff is slated for 2 p.m. rather than 1:30. The Lancers were dumped 16 - 0 by Austin Prep in their MVC initiation.

Reid stars

Bobby Reid, of the Class of 1973, Wilmington High School, is a Defensive Tackle and Kicker, for the Fordham Rams. He is now a freshman at Fordham.

Bobby is six foot two, and tips the scales at 235. He played last Friday, at the Iona game, in the Bronx, New York, and his father, John L. Reid of Lang Street was in the stands, to watch Bobby play.

Bobby started, and went the whole game. He got four announced tackles, and came out with the admiration of his team and his coaches.

WILDCAT MARK ESPOSITO: Rumbles into endzone for key Wilmington touchdown

Pre-schoolers have YMCA programs too

Pre-school gymnastics will be held once a week for 10 weeks, with a class on Monday mornings and a class Wednesday afternoons.

Approximately one-third of all first grade children are not prepared for school. They have great difficulty in learning to read and write. This all to common learning difficulty may occur because the children have not yet mastered the other skills necessary for success in first grade.

YMCA pre-school gym programs can provide the pre-school experience to assure a happy transition to grade school. When the environment is appropriately planned, improvement in skill development can be made by three-to-five-year-old children through repeated performance.

Skills that pre-school gym develops are: motor skills - running, jumping, creeping, throwing etc. for balance, control, muscular strength, and eye-hand coordination: visual perception - discriminating among various shapes, visual memory - recalling symbols, colors, numbers of objects: auditory discrimination - selecting and identifying certain stimulus from a complex background by ignoring all other stimuli: concentrating and paying attention.

The primary objective of the program is the personal safety of the child. He will be taught skills which he can use if he inadvertently finds himself in a dangerous situation, such as falling into a pool or off a dock.

Another objective is the development of physical skills in the children which can be carried over into recreational activities throughout their lives.

Mrs. Margery Williams, pre-school director, explains, "The pool is kept at 82 degrees, and the air temperature around 90 degrees. A flotation device called a bubble is strapped around the child's waist, so the bubble is on his back out of the way of his arms and legs.

The instructor begins by towing the child around in shallow water and explaining that the bubble will hold him up. Next, the child gets his face wet, begins jumping off the side of the pool, and learns to kick. The dog paddle is then learned, and soon the child is paddling in the pool on his own."

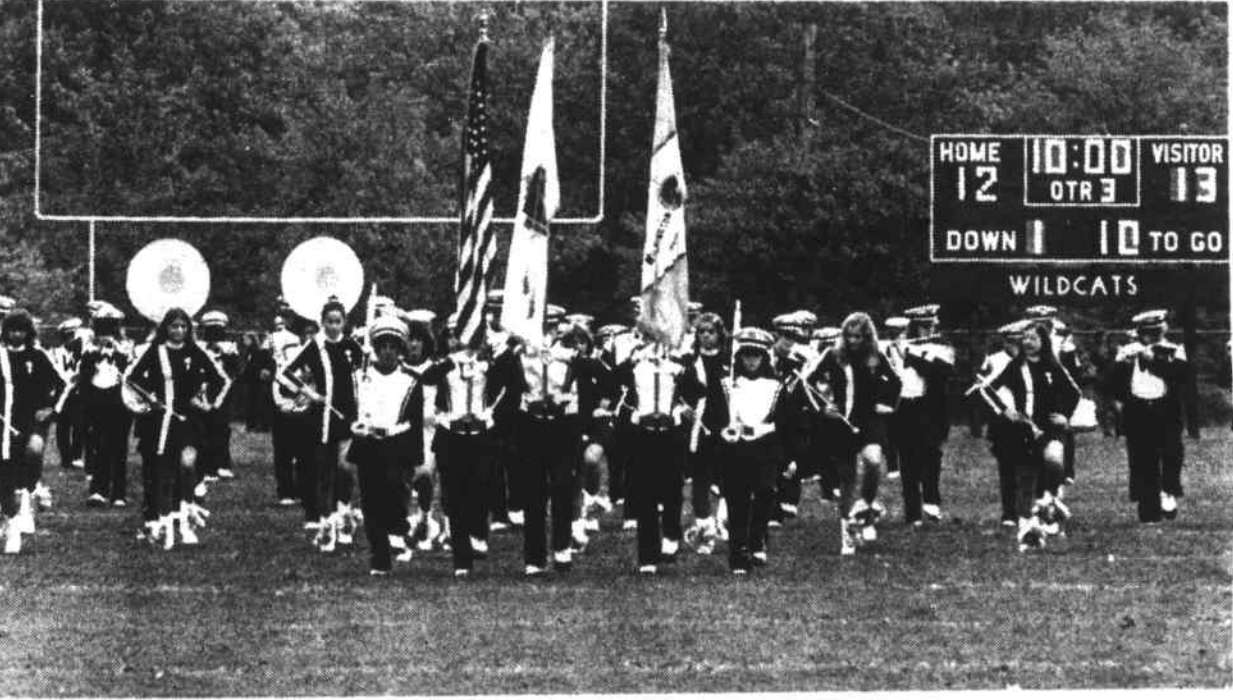

Registration is being held at the YMCA mornings September 22-26. Classes begin September 29.

Wildcat junior varsity impressive

The Wilmington High School junior varsity cross country team ran away with a win in their September 20 run off with rival MVC JV outfits. The Wildcats picked up 27 points to bury second place Tewksbury and third place Billerica. Lowell finished a distant fourth with 122 points.

Wildcat Dana Spring ran a 1.4 mile course in a fine 7:51.5 time as Redmen Tom Kennedy and Steve Lamb were hot on the Wildcats' tail with identical -;03 times.

Tewksbury finished with 95 points in a freshman - sophomore race while the Wildcats wound up with 112.

WHS BAND PERFORMS: At halftime with the "good guys" trailing by a single point.

Educational Equal Opportunity

Dear Parents:

An important piece of legislation affecting the public schools was passed in August, 1971. This law, Chapter 622 of the General Laws, Acts of 1971, is referred to as "An Act to Prohibit Discrimination in the Public Schools." The law reads as follows:

No person shall be excluded from or discriminated against in admission to a public school of any town, or in obtaining the advantages, privileges and courses of study of which public school on account of race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

This law makes it clear that all aspects of public school education must be fully open and available to members of both sexes and of minority groups. No school may exclude a child from any course, activity, service or resource available in that public school on account of race, color, sex, religion or national origin of such child.

On June 24, the state Board of Education approved regulations for Chapter 622. These regulations address five areas of school policy: school admissions, admission to courses of study, guidance, course content and extra-curricular and athletic activities.

If you have any questions or concerns regarding Chapter 622 and how it affects your children, please do not hesitate to contact your local principal or my office. Copies of the law and the regulations can be obtained from the Bureau of Equal Educational Opportunity, 182 Tremont St., Boston, Ma. 02111 (727-5880).

Respectfully,
 Walter H. Pierce
 Supt. of Schools

Seek added $50,000 for track

Tewksbury selectmen have voted 4-1 to insert three more articles into the warrant for the October 20 special town meeting asking $50,000 more be spent on the new high school track.

Selectmen Joseph J. Whelan, Neil Niven Jr., Norman O. Boudreau and Frank A. Antonelli agreed to the Redmen Football organization's request the article be inserted, although all were skeptical about the bid. Selectman Joseph A. McNeil opposed the article, saying the town couldn't afford the funds.

The costs would include $8,900 for a new sprinkler system and material to repair an asphalt road to the track field, $31,500 for bleachers seating 1,500 persons and $10,000 to sod the infield of the new track.

Coach backs funds

A highlight of the discussion concerning the article was football coach Bob Aylwood's impassioned speech on behalf of students who would use the facility.

"What we care most about is the youth of Tewksbury," he said. He added that the condition of school playing fields was such that, "We are being laughed at in our league."

Aylwood said the grass field located at the track now wouldn't be in proper condition for use by track runners for as much as three years, according to one expert.

Stresses efficiency

He said the track, if covered with sod and watered, could be used within four months of the sod and sprinkling equipment being placed there, and wouldn't require much maintenance. He added that it would eventually be used for football, girls' field hockey and possibly expanded athletics programs at TMHS.

As presently equipped, Aylwood said track "will be another Center School field within a year if action isn't taken now."

Selectmen criticized the private group responsible for drawing town meeting funding to build the track for not telling voters the track's eventual cost.

The regular 1974 town meeting voted $50,000 to build the track, but construction bids showed the facility would cost $150,000, and a special town meeting last year voted the additional money.

Costs up 400%

The additional $50,000 would drive the cost of the facility up to 400 per cent of its original estimated cost.

Chairman Whelan questioned whether more funds might be requested for the track later, and said residents should have been given complete figures on the track's cost when it was proposed.

Aylwood explained that the original track was planned for construction in the Center School field, where there are already bleachers and other facilities, but that building and track there proved unfeasible.

Questioned by Selectman Niven as to whether persons other than TMHS students could use the track, Aylwood said private citizens could use the track as individuals, but indiscriminate use of the track by organizations would prove damaging to the facility.

McNeil criticized the "piecemeal" way the track was presented to voters.

Aylwood said he understood he selectmen's concern but believed a fully equipped track would benefit the town's youth.

In other action, the board voted 4-1, with McNeil opposed, to request a finance committee transfer from reserve funds of $1,424 to pay Atty. Lawrence Ingleman for his job as special town counsel.

Ingleman defended the town against appeals from former Building Inspector George Nawn against the selectmen's reappointment of William Granfield as building inspector after a court found Granfield was improperly fired from the post.

Andersen Bill is back in the Senate

The Town Crier reported a week ago that the bill to allow Robert Andersen of School Street to take the Civil Service examination for policeman was on the Governor's Desk, in the State House.

The Wilmington Town Meeting, last spring had voted to have a bill placed in the legislature. Rep. Fred Cain did so. The bill was voted on favorably in the house, and in the Senate, and as reported last week went to the Governor's Desk for a signature. The Governor had until Sept. 22 to sign the bill.

Governor Dukakis called Rep. Cain Monday. Civil Service, he told Mr. Cain, was objecting to the bill.

Cain told the governor that the Town of Wilmington had voted to have the bill submitted, that it was the will of the Wilmington voters, and if Civil Service wanted to oppose the will of the Wilmington voters he, Fred Cain, would be voting against Civil Service. "you can count on me to do it" Cain told the Governor.

Gov. Dukakis solved the problem, in a way, by sending the bill back to the Senate, for another vote. That will give the Governor another ten days to think over the problem.

Harmony at the seventh hole

The Eden Country Club is a hospitable place, down on Chestnut Street in Wilmington. One of its boundaries is Mill Brook, which descends from the hills of Burlington into Wilmington. Along that brook is a road, Mill Road, and on that road over 300 years ago the first settler of Wilmington lived. The Town Crier wrote of those days extensively, some 17 or 18 years ago, and of the Garden of Eden, which was the name given to the area in days of yore.

Millard Pipes is Maine Yankee. He and Ruby Pipes came down from the State of Maine about 40 years ago and bought, for taxes, the old Bell Farm, which had been in Wilmington for a long time. Deacon Joseph Bell was living there before the Civil War, and the last of the Bell family was still alive when Millard arrived in town.

Millard was a dairy farmer. He wanted to try his hand in Wilmington. There was a nice barn, which could hold a herd of 20 or more cattle. He had, besides Mrs. Pipes a couple of hard working sons, and every one did his part on the Bell Dairy Farm.

Then, after World War II, things changed. Local dairy farms found it difficult to compete with large city farms. Bobby Pipes, one of the two sons, was killed in Korea. That was a tragedy for the people of Wilmington and it was a tragedy, of course for his parents and family.

It was about that time that Millard Pipes decided to convert the old Bell Farm into a Country Club. He started a club that he called The Garden of Eden, after the stories that had appeared in the Town Crier.

Millard had observed other country clubs start, and had noted that there were always about three bankruptcies, before the club really got onto a firm financial standing. That, he said, was not going to happen to the Garden of Eden Country Club.

Millard took the cautious Yankee stance, in his approach to starting a country club. He wanted no mortgages. He wanted no big debts, beyond his control. He was going to sell stock, and raise the money among the members, and he was going to do a lot of the work, using his tractor and other machinery.

He planned a nine hole golf course, with a clubhouse, on the westerly side of Chestnut Street, all on the Bell Farm. On the easterly side - later - there could be another nine holes.

The small brook which was in the middle of the old farm on the westerly side was graded and converted nicely into a water hazard, as a part of the obstacles for the nine holes.

Being a Maine Yankee Millard did not, when he incorporated the Garden of Eden Country Club, include the land where the seventh and eighth holes and fairways were planned. Those two holes remained his property. They were to be his Ace, if financial difficulties were to come in future days.

But, in spite of his frugal husbandry, there came a day when there were too many creditors for the assets on hand. Millard lost control of his country club and moved to Florida.

He still had the two holes.

The new owners, who were in great part the investors of the previous club, took over. They too, have worked hard. They have built a nice clubhouse, to go with the golf course.

The Wilmington League of Women Voters used that clubhouse, last week, for the installation of their new officers. And the ladies were, they report, properly impressed.

But to the people using the golf course, and who knew the story of Millard Pipes, there was always a chuckle at the seventh and eighth holes. Millard had them there, firmly.

But Dom Corsett, who now runs the Country Club, had an answer. He designed two new fairways, and two new greens, complete with two new holes, for the seventh and eighth holes. The new design has been in use now for a couple of years.

So in one sense of the word there was no joke, last week, when Bradford Pipes, a grandson of Millard showed up to assert ownership of the two holes. Bradford lives in Rhode Island, and is the son of Jimmy, who used to deliver milk to many Wilmington families, 20 years ago, and who now lives in Presque Isle, Maine.

Brad had a mission. He had to post the land, put up No Trespassing signs, so that it still remained in the legal ownership of his grandfather - the two holes that is, the seventh and eighth holes that Millard had planned so many years ago.

Brad had with him a Constable, to observe the posting, and to be certain that all was legal. He was welcomed by Dom, and together the two men went over and put up the signs.

Millard Pipes still owns the land in those two golf fairways. He had made his legal point. He is happy.

Dom Corsett heads up the Eden Country Club. He has a nice nine hole golf course, operating very nicely, thank you. He too, is happy.

Second Elderly Housing Project is nixed

The Wilmington Housing Authority has been told that there are no funds available for a second elderly housing project in Wilmington, in addition to the present 40 apartment complex at Deming Way.

A letter from the secretary of the Department of Community Affairs reports that the Department has 80 applications for funds, in excess of $135 millions, and a present bonding authority of less than $60 millions. The letter goes on to say that the measure of relative need, among communities which have legitimate needs, is based on population data.

"Wilmington does not have a priority need rating because of the concentration of elderly housing resources in the surrounding areas," the Department secretary wrote. "However, the Department is encouraging a regional approach to meeting the needs for elderly housing, will take all possible steps to see that eligible elderly in Wilmington receive consideration in applying for subsidized housing available throughout the region."

National Scholastic Tests for Juniors Oct. 21

On Tuesday, October 21, students in grade 11 will have the opportunity to take the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test/National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test (PSAT/NMSQT) at Wilmington High School.

The test is an objective test measuring certain verbal and mathematical abilities that have been shown to be related to success in college work. Thus, it offers the student a chance to find out more about himself and to get information which may be helpful to him in planning for education beyond high school. It also allows him to enter certain programs such as the National Merit Scholarship program that use PSAT/NMSQT scores.

Juniors who want to take the PSAT/NMSQT can sign up in the guidance office and pick up a copy of the PSAT/NMSQT Student Bulletin. The $2.50 fee is to be paid at this time.

If there are further questions about the test or the advisability of taking it, students or their parents are encouraged to see their guidance counselor said Dr. George Eisenberg, principal, Wilmington High School.

Hugh O'Brien Youth Foundation

Dr. George O. Eisenberg has announced the participation of Wilmington High School in the Hugh O'Brien Youth Foundation.

The foundation was established in 1958 and since that time has conducted yearly leadership seminars on a variety of stimulating subjects. The purpose of the foundation is to seek out young people of sophomore age and provide opportunities for their potential leadership abilities to emerge, develop, and be recognized. Participants are selected regardless of religion, ethnic or national origin.

The annual leadership seminars are sponsored and funded by the foundation. Although, responsible for organizing and conducting the seminars, the foundation does not select the participants. To assure the broadest possible recognition and representation of young men and women, nationally recognized school and civic organizations assist the youth foundation by going to the grass root level to competition. Every high school sophomore is eligible to attend the seminars and is encouraged to apply. Mr. O'Brien says, "This age group offers a great return on the investment...totally inspired by the leadership seminar experience, the participants return home with two years remaining in high school to motivate not only themselves, but their fellow classmates to bring forth and put to practical use their emerging leadership potential."

Mr. O'Brien asks only one thing of the young people who attend these seminars - that they write to him once a year, on their birthday until the age of 30, relating their accomplishments as well as defeats, their successes as well as frustrations in reaching for their goals. In return Mr. O'Brien on his birthday writes to them every year. Through these letters the foundation can observe their progress and discover new ways of stimulating our greatest natural resource...the responsible youth of tomorrow.

The nominee from Wilmington High School will participate in the final election of the Massachusetts representative to the seminar.
